The ASL-CDI 2.0 measures early ASL skills, and is designed for kids from birth to five years old. There are two forms to choose from.

Long form: This is a more precise, complete evaluation of the child's ASL vocabulary and early language skills. It takes 2-3 hours to complete, and includes about 600 questions, and can be done at your own pace over the course of one week.

Short form: This is a less detailed, brief snapshot of the child's ASL vocabulary. It focuses only on vocabulary and not other language skills. It takes about 20 minutes to complete, and includes about 100 questions.

The test is currently free.
